CABOURG, CAPITAL OF ROMANTISM

Iconic establishment of the resort station of Cabourg, Le Grand Hotel has kept its timeless charm. It is one of the rare prestigious places of the Normand coast benefiting from a direct access to the beach. Facing the sea, the guests can admire the majestic facade of the building, illuminated by the last sunshine of the day. They can enjoy a cocktail at La Promenade; the hotel terrace on the Promenade Marcel Proust which is a 4km long walk romantically renamed « the Meridian of Love »...

IDYLIC AND UNIQUE SETTING

Built in 1907, the Grand Hotel is a unique mix of Italian Renaissance architecture and Belle Epoque decors. We can feel the romantic and cosy atmosphere everywhere in the building. The traveler is invited to a complete pause in time through the splendid hall and its antic tassels chandeliers, the large bay windows and the high ceiling. Ode to poetry, the rooms decorated independently from one another give to the South with a pretty view of the typical architecture of Normandy; or give to the North with a unforgettable view upon the sea and its infinite horizon.

LITERARY INSPIRATION

"Having learned that there was a hotel in Cabourg, the most comfortable on the coast, I went there.." The Grand Hotel is a mythical place thanks to Marcel Proust who wrote about it in his books « In Search of Lost Time ». He called it « The Grand Hotel Balbec ». Literature lovers can stay on the room 414 decorated in the Belle Epoque Style. It is one of the rooms where he wrote parts of his masterpiece.
